CLINTON, TENNESSEE

On August 27, 1956, twelve young people walked into history in Clinton, Tennessee. They were the first students to desegregate a state-supported high school in the south. The community took an initial constructive approach to this historic event, but the arrival of outsiders with anti-integration propaganda resulted in growing violence, the formation of a home guard, and the arrival of the National Guard and martial law. Unlike other locations, the local and state governments supported the law, and the city's white religious and economic leaders allied with the black students and their families. When white supremacists bombed the high school in 1958, the Anderson County community, citizens and students from Clinton and Oak Ridge refurbished an abandoned elementary school in Oak Ridge, and Clinton HS was back in session in 1 week, still integrated.

STARTING POINT

You are starting your walk at Hoskins Drug Store, 111 N. Main St., Clinton, TN 37716. The original Hoskins on Market Street opened in the 1930s to serve employees of the nearby textile mill and Bush Brothers Cannery, as well as TVA employees brought to Anderson County by the construction of Norris Dam. To increase sales in this store, Hoskins added a beauty shop and a popcorn machine. High school boys were hired to sell popcorn by the bagful to customers who pulled curbside for "drive-in" service. This store, next to the Ritz Theater on Main Street, opened in 1947. This store was added to the National and the Tennessee Registry of Historic Places by the National Park Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior in 1998. The soda fountain, from the 1940's, was custom-made for Hoskins. You owe it to yourself to take the time to eat at Hoskins Drug Store.

Directions:

From the East (I-40W), take exit 393 to merge onto I-640 W/US-25W toward I-75 N/Lexington. Continue on I-640W to take exit 3B for US-25W N toward Clinton. Follow TN-9 W/Hwy 25 N to destination on the right.

From the West (I-40E), take exit 356 (TN-58 N/Gallaher Rd) toward Oak Ridge. Continue onto Oak Ridge Turnpike. Continue onto TN-61 E. Turn left onto Hwy 25 N/S Main St. Destination on the right.

Parking: There is street parking but most are metered. There are a number of large, free parking lots within a couple of blocks of Hoskins Drug Store.
